Our Mission : Corruption Free Pakistan

At present everything is fast and making progress, with this fast advancement, corruption has become a world problem. It is in fact, a universal problem, having existed in all ages. The true reason for corruption is a desire to get rich by any means. In a free and competitive society, investment of capital can yield only reasonable returns in the long run.

But corruption or acceptance of bribes promises a rapid change in financial conditions. Mostly in Pakistan originally the Police and P.W.D were notorious for corruption but now the evil has spread to almost every Department of Government. Even courts of justice and education are no-exceptions. They have also become an arena of corruption. Our Mission is corruption free Pakistan. Some important factors that contribute to the prevalence of corruption differ from country to country. Those that are common to most countries including Pakistan are seven. In Pakistan and some other countries, first general economic condition to the country is poor and every one tries to feather his nest. Secondly, the rates of remuneration of public functionaries are low, and they are tempted to accept bribes. Thirdly, the general price level and the standard of living are very high: honest means of a person fail him. Fourthly, social conditions and customs demand lavish expenditure of money. Fifth, there exists no strong opinion against corruption: it has been accepted as a common thing. Lastly, there are no adequate means to prevent corruption or punish the law breakers in Pakistan country.

As our mission : Corruption free Pakistan so for removing corruption from the Pakistan country , a complete change of the political, social and economic system is necessary. No revision of pay scales, however liberal, can reduce corruption. The reason is that the wealth targets aimed at by corrupt officials are very high. The new government of Imran Khan has to rely on permanent services for its day administration. Unless the motive or inducement for corruption is removed, corruption will continue. Four steps, however, may be of some use. First, wide discretionary powers should be taken away from individual officials in Pakistan. Secondly, Anticorruption department should be made more effective. Thirdly, the minds of the Pakistanis people should be changed, by the prevalence of moral values. Lastly, the law-bakers should be punished severely and dealt with iron-hand. So InshAllah Our mission will be success for corruption free Pakistan.
